-MOST School on "Inclusive Cities : SDGs and Youth Leadership in the Arab region", Beirut, Lebanon, 21-22 July 2016

Observations on the 5 MOST Schools

The success of the process depends heavily on the initial identification of capable and committed national partners

-71% of participants were women
-MOST Schools were given high marks (91% satisfied, 94% would recommend)

-Civil society representatives are eager users of research
-A majority of participants indicated that the worth of research in policy making was recognized in their workplaces

Different frequency with which research is used between policy makers and representatives from civil society

UNESCO Inclusive Policy Lab

- Social Transformations, Tunis, Tunisia, 3-4 March, 2016

4 main purposes

- I. Empower participants by helping them learn about their anticipatory assumptions
- II. In the lab, use collective intelligence to analyze important issues
- III. Apply theory to practice of Futures Literacy
- IV. Provide the opportunity to test and evaluate a range of different configurations and processes, in order to improve the quality and understanding of the FLLs

Evaluation on the 9 activities organized during the reporting period :

- Different types of participants (youth participants, university researchers, government policy makers)
- Proved being effective tools for:
 - I. building capacity
 - II. Rethinking key challenges
 - III. Developing communities of practice and research
 - IV. Advancing the design knowledge of the labs

Planned :

- Co-publication with Routledge, “Transforming the Future: Anticipation in the 21st Century”, will provide in depth analysis of 30 FLLs run by UNESCO since 2012
